

[MUSIC PLAYING]

I started translating for PG&E 20 years ago. When you have an advocate in the community that will be your voice and that will listen to you and try to help you, it does make a big difference. I'm so grateful because I can help the community.

[NON-ENGLISH SPEECH]

I wanted to give back because I learned that from my dad. My dad always wanted to help the community in Chinatown, giving them a voice. Dad would always remind us if you can help, help, and I think I just learned that from him.
