Introduction to Energy and Utilities Careers for Women

Introduction to Energy and Utilities Careers for Women

PG&E PowerPathway™ is now accepting applications to the Introduction to Energy and Utilities Careers for Women program at Tradeswomen Inc — a customized, 60 hour career prep course for women that will strengthen your candidacy for employment and add to your knowledge of the energy and utilities industry.

Get the training you need for a career in energy

Coursework includes an introduction to utilities and utility trades careers, strategies to overcoming obstacles to women in the trades, and soft skills training to effectively compete for entry-level field jobs.

Prepare yourself with the entry-level skills needed to be considered for job opportunities in a high growth industry:

- Are you mechanically or technically inclined?
- Do you like working with electronics and/or electrical equipment?
- Are you interested in working outdoors in a physically demanding work environment?
- Do you have construction-related skills?

If this sounds like you, apply today. We want to hear from you! PG&E entry-level field operation positions have starting salaries of up to $25 per hour with a competitive benefits package, including: company-paid pension and matching 401(k), medical/dental/vision benefits, developmental opportunities, tuition reimbursement and much more.

Your career pathway to new energy jobs

PG&E's PowerPathway has teamed up with Tradeswomen Inc. to help California's women prepare and compete for high demand jobs in the energy and utilities industry. Career pathways such as the PowerPathway Introduction to Energy and Utilities Careers for Women program help women transition into jobs with good pay in a growing industry.
