Time-of-use rates are coming. Start preparing with your PG&E online account

PG&E is committed to helping your business succeed with time-of-use rates, coming November 2016. The best way to start preparing is by thoroughly understanding the way your business uses electricity and how it impacts your bill. Your PG&E online account offers free, easy-to-use tools to assess your energy use and identify the rate plan option that best suits your business.

Once you're on the overview page, click My Usage to see your energy usage history and identify the times and activities that impact your bill. Then you can make energy and cost-saving decisions for your business.

In the My Usage section, click on My Rates to compare rate plan options and understand how your rate structure relates to your energy usage. Comparisons based on your usage and demand history will show estimated costs on your current rate as well as other rate plans for which your business is eligible.
