

DO YOU HAVE A PLAN TO STAY SAFE DURING POWER OUTAGES?

PG&E has a plan to deal with the growing threat of extreme weather and wildfires. We want you to have a plan, too. For safety, it may be necessary for us to temporarily turn off your electricity if extreme fire danger conditions occur. We would only consider turning off power in the interest of safety, and as a last resort.

When your power is turned off, you can expect:

- Early Warning Notification: If conditions allow, we would provide notice to your landlord or master meter account holder between one hour to 48 hours in advance through automated phone calls, emails and texts.
- Ongoing Updates: Regular updates will be provided through social media, local news, radio and at pge.com.
- Safety Inspections and Power Restoration: After the extreme weather has passed and it is safe to do so, our crews will work to inspect the lines and safely restore power.

Take these steps to create your own plan for extreme weather:

Update Your Contact Information

PG&E recommends contacting your landlord or master meter account holder to ensure they have your up-to-date contact information.

Build or Restock Your Emergency Supply Kit

Stock supplies to last a week – include flashlights, fresh batteries, first aid supplies, food, water and cash.

Plan for Medical Needs

Talk with your doctor about planning for any medications that may need to be refrigerated or medical devices that require power.
