

Do you have a PG&E-branded nightlight in your home?

You should be aware of a product recall.

From approximately 2006 through 2009, PG&E distributed nightlights as part of our Energy Partnership Program, which provided customers with energy efficient upgrades to their homes. PG&E recently learned these nightlights are subject to manufacturer recall.

If you received a PG&E-branded nightlight that looks like the one shown, please dispose of it quickly and properly.

Manufacturer recalls nightlights

According to the manufacturer recall, the nightlights can become hot to the touch and possibly melt.

The nightlights have the following characteristics:

- Shaped like a house with a chimney.
- Marked with the PG&E logo and website address.
- Glow green when plugged into an electrical outlet.
- May have the identification tag 71980 U.S.A. on back.

Your safety is our top priority.

In order to ensure a safe environment, PG&E recommends these nightlights be removed from your home immediately. We encourage you to take action and regret any inconvenience this product recall causes.

If you have any questions about safety or would like further information about the recall, please contact PG&E at 1-800-743-5000.
